

Learning Management

It takes more than employees covering the workload to realize workforce management success. Your staff must be qualified to perform each task as efficiently and effectively as possible. Preparing employees for new technology, products, operational processes or responsibilities requires an effective training program that encompasses the right learning approach and deployment model. RedPrairie Learning Management and eCourses serve as a critical component of a retail operator's overall training program, streamlining the learning process for a distributed workforce.

KEY BENEFITS

- Reduce operating and training costs
 - Decrease time to competence
 - Increase employee productivity
 - Streamline training management
 - Improve employee satisfaction

RedPrairie's Learning Management module enables users to reduce cost & complexity of distributing courseware, centrally manage and access all training content, simplify setup, deployment, & reuse of training content, centralize course tracking, manage certifications and assess overall performance.

RedPrairie eCourses provide comprehensive training and testing on RedPrairie Enterprise allowing retailers to quickly and easily prepare site level personnel for a RedPrairie implementation. When used in conjunction with RedPrairie Learning Management, course completion and results are automatically tracked, allowing retailers to understand their organization's level of preparedness for go-live.

Capabilities

RedPrairie's Learning Management module and eCourses help managers facilitate the delivery of self-paced and instructor led training to employees across all stores. Key features include:

- Learning Paths - Job and role defined courses that are bundled and presented into one comprehensive deliverable. The designer has the ability to assign completion timelines and create status reporting across the organization.
- Course Management - Track employee performance, training history and job certifications in a central location, making it easy to identify potential problems before they occur.
- eCourses - Self-guided courses present real-world scenarios via engaging media, allowing employees to become active participants in learning, while improving training results and reducing costly errors on the job.
- Authoring Tool - Enables instructional designers to create and maintain SCORM compliant, Flash-based eLearning content and exams in an easy to use format.
